TO BEGIN WORK ON TARIFF REVISION

First Stage in Program Entered Upon Today
The Morraine Records 20 Be Little Suffering so Far

METHODS NOT YET DECIDED

Democrats Predict an Early Change in Existing Tariff Law

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The first stage in the program for downward revision of the tariff, promised by the Democratic party, will be entered upon tomorrow, when the house of representatives will begin its committee on ways and means, formally will open the discussion of tariff rates, protection to industries and concessions to the "ultimate" consumer.

The work will be preparatory to the first change of tariff duties since the Payne-Adams law was enacted. Fortified by the election of Democratic president and congress, and the announcement of President Wilson that the revision is to be the first big achievement of the new administration, Democratic leaders will open reforming proceedings confident that they will lead to a change in many, if not all, of the duties in the existing tariff law.

Method of Revision Not Decided

The method of the approaching revision is a point not yet settled. It is the Democratic leaders and President Wilson. It is known that the committee on ways and means will have the authority to change the tariff duties in the existing law. The committee will have the authority to change the tariff duties in the existing law.

Urged by Democratic Leader, the committee will have the authority to change the tariff duties in the existing law. The committee will have the authority to change the tariff duties in the existing law.

While the Democratic tariff is to be used on the revenue needed to run the government, it is understood that the tariff will be revised in order to protect the American industries.

Drugs, chemicals, paints and other commodities that come within the tariff list, known as "Schedule A," will form the subjects of the opening hearings tomorrow and Tuesday. The tariff schedule raises over $12,000,000 in revenue, or about 4 per cent of the total revenue from the tariff. The tariff schedule is to be revised in order to protect the American industries.

NOBODY KNOWS WHO'LL BE IN WILSON CABINET

President-Elect Says He Has Made No Offers; Finds Task of Cabinet Making "Very Difficult"

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 5.—President-elect Wilson tonight made it clear that nobody in the United States knew as yet who was going to be in his cabinet, or what would be the program for the next congress.

Mr. Wilson stated that while he had anticipated a variety of subjects and had talked over many names with Democratic leaders, he has not given a definite intimation in any direction either as to what his selections of his cabinet will be, or as to what his program would be. He indicated, however, that he expected the extra session would be devoted exclusively to tariff making, and said he would specify in a special message some of the subjects upon which he would like legislation enacted.

Finds Task Difficult

The president-elect admitted he was finding the task of cabinet making very difficult. He said he would delay any announcements until he could name his entire cabinet.

"I don't like to make scattered announcements," he said, "and it may be that I will not announce the cabinet until the last minute. Some times I hear something about a man whom I had not considered that makes me wicker up my ears and want to know more about him. The field of choice is widening constantly."

It was suggested to Mr. Wilson that he delay his announcements until the last minute some of the men chosen might find themselves embarrassed for time in winding up their business affairs.

"Oh, I wouldn't show those men

COLDEST DAY OF WINTER IN CITY

NINE DEGREES BELOW ZERO AT MIDNIGHT

The Morraine Records 20 Be Little Suffering so Far

Yesterday was the coldest day of the winter in Colorado Springs. The thermometer ranged from 2 degrees above zero at 9 a.m. to 9 degrees below zero at 12 o'clock last night, with the lowest of still colder weather before dawn. The temperature was last at 9 a.m. and 4 below at 8 p.m. There was no sun and the air was filled with the frost throughout the day. The total snowfall during the last storm was five and a half inches. Only one-half an inch more fell at Lake Moraine, but the temperature there late last night was 20 below zero colder than at any time last winter.

It is thought that the average temperature for December, January and February will be lower than for several years, since the average during the last month of 1912 was considerably lower than last year. There have been more days during which the average for the day has been about 20 degrees.

Unless the present cold snap is of long duration, there will be no loss of stock in the eastern part of the county. Most of the farmers have a good supply of feed on hand, and the cattle and horses are in good condition to withstand the cold. The low temperature is beneficial throughout the state and Rocky Mountain region.

Method of Revision Not Decided

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 5.—Today was the coldest day that the Cripple Creek district has experienced in three years. At 8 o'clock tonight the thermometer registered 14 degrees below zero.

DENVER, Jan. 5.—A temperature of below zero has fallen upon the entire state of Colorado. All parts of the state report the severest cold of the winter, though no storms have so far appeared.

In Denver the thermometer registered at 8 to 10 below and in Estes Park 20 below. In other sections the cold varied according to the altitude.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 5.—A night fall of snow and temperatures of from 10 to 15 degrees below zero today gave western Missouri and the greater part of Kansas the first real touch of winter of the season.

OMAHA, Jan. 5.—With temperatures ranging from 5 above to 5 below zero, Nebraska is experiencing tonight the first severe storm of the season. The cold weather was accompanied by a light drifting snow.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 5.—Probably the entire state of Indiana was in the grip today of a severe hail and steel storm that interrupted street car and railroad service and made telephone and telegraph communication uncertain. Many persons were injured by falls on slippery pavements. Among these was George Adams, author and playwright, who was rendered unconscious.

10 MEN MEET DEATH WHEN SHIPS GO DOWN

Three Launches Driven Ashore Near Point of Rocks in Heavy Gale

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 5.—Three launches driven ashore last night on the Pacific coast near Point of Rocks, about 15 miles north of this city, and 10 men probably were drowned. One of the launches was the United States immigration launch "Luzon". There was a total of 12 men on board the three launches, and only two are known to have reached shore.

Among the lost were United States immigration inspectors George Jones and Daniel Kaykendall. One unidentified body is the only one that has come ashore.

The three vessels met disaster in one of the severest storms recently experienced on the southern California coast. The gale at times reached a velocity of 50 miles an hour.

One of the lost boats was the fishing power boat Old Nick of San Diego. The name of the third, a ship, has not been learned.

Number of Dead Unknown. As the number of occupants of the ship was not learned, the total loss of life may never be known, but at least seven men were drowned. The seas carried away every trace of wreckage, with the exception of a ladder and a piece of the upper works of a boat, believed to have been the launch. The known dead are:

UNITED STATES IMMIGRATION INSPECTOR GUST T. JONES. UNITED STATES IMMIGRATION INSPECTOR DANIEL KUYKENDALL. G. GOROLAMI, engineer of the immigration launch "Luzon". ANTON BASIL, a San Diego fisherman. CLARENCE HILL, Pacific fleet boatman. TIMOTHY GOOD, engineer of the Old Nick. JOHN PETE, a San Diego fisherman. FRANK STOUT, a companion of Hill and Nick. Benitez, owner of the Old Nick, were saved.

The ship was wrecked about one mile south of the other craft, and is believed to have had a crew of three men. It is thought all were lost.

Officers Fail in Rescue. The first word of the disaster reached here last night, when E. W. Taylor of Imperial Beach, telephoned to Sheriff Jennings of San Diego street an unknown ship was ashore several miles south of Imperial, and that five men were waving signals of distress. The sheriff at once sent three men to the rescue. Darkness had fallen when they reached the scene of the wreck, and the seas were breaking heavily on shore. They could do nothing, and when daylight came, bits of the wreckage of the ship were found on shore.

WIGGINS, KIT CARSON TRAPPER, NEAR DEATH

DENVER, Jan. 5.—Oliver E. Wiggins, trapper with Kit Carson, veteran of the Mexican war and chief of scouts with General Heath in the Indian wars, is near death at his home here. Some weeks ago Mr. Wiggins suffered a stroke of paralysis from which he never rallied. No hope is held out for his recovery. Mr. Wiggins is 60 years of age.

DR. SWIFT, AMERICAN ASTRONOMER, IS DEAD

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Dr. Lewis Swift, America's great astronomer, died early today at his home in Marathon, from a stroke of paralysis. Mr. Swift was the acknowledged discoverer of more than 1,300 nebulae, or "little worlds," and 15 comets.

MAYME, MAUD AND FLOSS ALL ANGRY AT MR. CROSS

DENVER, Jan. 5.—Six girls employed at the Shirley hotel here resent the announcement of W. B. Cross, the Colorado rancher, proclaimed applying at the national convention of apple growers in New York city, that he wants a wife. They sent him the following telegram tonight:

"W. B. Cross Hotel Breslin, New York City:—Mayme, Maud, Lillian, Margaret and Flossie and myself feel deeply aggrieved at your publicly advertising through the Associated Press and the New York press for a life companion. We each of us who for the last 20 years have so lavishly entertained you, desire to know if we are to be disappointed. Answer."

MRS. HARRIET SEXTON, PHILANTHROPIST, DIES

DENVER, Jan. 5.—Mrs. Harriet Scott Sexton, well-known philanthropist and clubwoman, died at the county hospital, this morning at the age of 75. Though at one time comparatively wealthy, Mrs. Sexton had exhausted the last of her funds in caring for her philanthropic work and was compelled to go to the county hospital when stricken Thursday.

She was a member of numerous women's clubs. The Public Service League, the Colorado Equal Suffrage Association, and an officer in the Ben B. Lindsey's juvenile court.

TURKEY'S VIEWS ON WAR AGAINST ALLIES

PARIS, Jan. 5.—Nasim Pasha, the Turkish minister of war, who was asked recently by the League of Nations to state his views on the war, has sent an interesting declaration, after making time for full reflection. The declaration is as follows:

"The outbreak of the war found the Turkish army in an unfavorable situation. It was in the midst of reorganization. Nevertheless, strenuous efforts were made to place it on a war footing.

There were only 15,000 men in Thrace, when hostilities began, but Turkey rapidly concentrated an imposing force there. It will be a great mistake to judge of the real value of the Turkish army by the lack of success in the first battle. The Bulgarians understood this before the attack. We consider the affair of Kirk-Kilis as an unhappy accident.

The Ottoman army cannot be said to have been beaten at Kirk-Kilis. We have succeeded in mending all that at Teke and in showing the real worth of the army. Along the Teke lines today is a newly formed army, more vigorous and more determined—an army which has been tested by terrible ordeals at Kirk-Kilis and Lule Burgas, and from which the rotten members have been unmercifully lopped off."

GUGGENHEIM PLANTS FACE CLOSING DOWN

Conditions in Mexico Make It Impossible for Mills to Operate

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 5.—The Guggenheim smelter and milling plant in northern Mexico are in danger of shutting down for lack of fuel caused by the effect of the increasing railway traffic and the strike of National railway employees. As the plant is situated on the coast, the fuel is shipped by rail, which would require the use of a great deal of money to operate the plant. The Guggenheim interests, incorporated as the American Smelting and Refining company, already are considering the possibility of a general shutdown of their smelters, mines and railways, it is said.

Representatives at Washington of two Mexican mining companies today telegraphed the mine managers to send out at once all American women and children. The cause of the apprehension is not explained.

Padro Robledo, who says he is a peace commissioner for the Mexican government, arrived here today, after treating with the rebels below Juarez. He appeared discouraged by his mission, having been robbed by the rebels of his money and some articles of clothing.

Damage done Friday to the Mexican Northwestern railway between Terrell and Madera was more than at first reported. The rebels burned many bridges, destroyed a station house and burned a long freight train, covering the track with debris which it will take many days to clear.

There were only 15,000 men in Thrace, when hostilities began, but Turkey rapidly concentrated an imposing force there. It will be a great mistake to judge of the real value of the Turkish army by the lack of success in the first battle. The Bulgarians understood this before the attack. We consider the affair of Kirk-Kilis as an unhappy accident.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 5.—It is stated on good authority that the Turkish delegates at London have submitted privately to the allies, Turkey's final conditions. According to these, the western frontier will follow the rivers Maritza and Tundja. Turkey will retain Adrianople, but Kirk-Kilis on the northern frontier will be abandoned. It is understood, however, that Turkey is willing to raise the Adrianople forts and transfer to the allies the Christian villages in the vilayet of Adrianople.

VIENNA, Jan. 4.—A semi-official note published in the Neues Wiener Tagblatt says that in the event of failure of the peace conference, the European powers will take direct action in the peace question and that Austria will play a leading part in this.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The Times, referring to the peace conference, says that although prepared in a military sense to resume hostilities, the allies have weighty reasons for not further delaying the peace. This, adds the Times, is still more the case with Turkey.

CHRISTMAS TREE ABAZE; TWO BURNED TO DEATH

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Robert A. Rietze, an architect and his wife Gertrude, were burned to death last night in their home in a fashionable residence district in a fire that started from a dried-out Christmas tree spread rapidly through the building.

PRINCE ALEXIS IN FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 5.—According to a dispatch in the Journal, the Russian prince, Alexis, arrived here at 11 o'clock last night. He proceeded to the Hotel de Ville, where he will remain to complete his convalescence.

DUSTIN FARNUM IN "THE LITTLEST REBEL"

All roads theatrical promise to lead to the Grand Opera tonight, the date on which Dustin Farnum is scheduled to appear in this city in A. H. Woods' massive and spectacular production of "The Littlest Rebel," which has been crowding theaters in Chicago, New York and Boston with enthusiastic audiences. "The Littlest Rebel" deals with the closing days of the Civil war and tells a story of tenderness and humanity, of a father's love for his baby girl, a love which prompts him to disregard dangers, and, in the face of death, fight his way through the ene-

SCENE FROM "THE LITTLEST REBEL" AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT.

November and the first fortnight of December made it certain that the musical comedy would run the season out in the LaSalle opera house, Chicago.

The new piece is the work of Addison Burkhardt, Frederick Donaghey and Ben M. Jerome and these three are said to have provided a fabric of play songs and melodies that is matchless in its ideal of an American musical comedy dealing with an American theme, and with the scenes laid in this country.

The first act passes in the delightful old French quarter of the New Orleans of today, on the occasion of the annual Mardi Gras festival. Act 2 takes place on a picturesque rice plantation on the Mississippi, above New Orleans, a resort to which all the characters rush when danger threatens the happiness of the two pairs of young lovers whose romance is the basis of the story. This is the first time the famous ante-bellum carnival of the Crescent city—a carnival that takes the hundreds of thousands of visitors there every year—has been put upon the stage.

The authors of "Louisiana Lou" did not go to New Orleans for their scene, but to the Mardi-Gras for their color, simply with a view of being picturesque. Their plot is so entwined with the Mardi-Gras masking and fun that it will readily be seen why the Chicago critics have heaped high praise upon "Louisiana Lou" as a play as well as in its aspects as a show.

THE RED ROSE

"The Red Rose" will be the offering at the Grand Opera house next Saturday, January 12, matinee and night, with the chic little comic opera prima donna, Zoe Barnett, at its head. John C. Fisher, whose lavish productions of "Florodora," "The Silver Slipper," "Babes in the Wood," and other musical comedy successes of the past decade, are well known, is sponsor for the present attraction.

"The Red Rose" tells a love story of the bond which draws Lola, an apparently penniless model of the studios, to Dick Lorimer, only son of an American millionaire captain of industry. Misunderstandings and personal opposition part the lovers, but true love reunites them in the end. Through the action of the story, with its pathos, comedy, drama, runs a riot of colorful goings, coming, scene changes and stage effects. The first act shows the studio of Julian, a painting master of Paris; the second, the baronial estate of Lola's father; and the third, the Ball of the Four Arts, given by the students of Paris Bohemia.

In Miss Barnett's support are many players known in comic opera circles, the cast including Louis Casavant, J. Brown, Maurice Barry, Russell Larson, Wayne Nunn, William H. Carter, Charles Clear, Charlotte Philbrick, Louis Haffmy and Walter H. Catlett. The chorus numbers some 35 members, and is said to be unusually attractive. Mr. Fisher is said to have employed the greatest care in the selection of his company and the mounting of the

Financial Review

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The summing up of results for the year just ended, to which last week largely was given up in the stock market, offered no more striking fact than the small not changes in the price average. The average price of the most active stocks varied scarcely a point from January 1 a year ago. In the interim, nearly all departments of finance, commerce, industry and agriculture had made new records of activity, volume and value. From the year's high level of stock values in October, declines followed with the outbreak of the Balkan war, and culminated early in December, after the supreme court decision against the Harriman railroad merger.

The money market in New York showed that preparations for the year's settlements had been ample to avert the expected stringency.

The most authoritative financial opinion maintains confidence in the year's prospects for continued activity and prosperity in trade.

ANTIQUITY OF CHAFING DISH

From the Woman's Home Companion.

The chafing dish is not a utensil of modern invention. Looking backward over history's pages, many allusions are made to its use. Among the ruins of Pompeii have been found bronze chafing dishes of unique designs, and Meissen, in his "Romische Geschichte," asserts that in those days a well-wrought "cooking machine" came to cost more than an estate. Louis XVI took much delight in cooking, and according to Goemart, often amused himself by making "quintessential steaks in silver pans." The palate of Louis XVI was often tickled by "piping hot dishes brought in on a chafing dish." Napoleon Bonaparte, when laying down the affairs of war and enjoying home life for a short period, cooked in a silver chafing dish, an omelet for the enjoyment of the empress and himself. Mme. Recamier, the beautiful and intellectual society leader, used the chafing dish; while Mme. de Staël, the greatest woman in literary history, when exiled from her beloved France, took with her the chafing dish. We of today are doing much to keep alive the true spirit of hospitality by bringing the chafing dish into popular use.

THE FIRST PURE FOOD LAW

From the Health Culture Magazine.

Prof. George A. Reisner of Harvard university has discovered among some specimens of earliest Hebrew writing in the excavations of the city of Samaria, in Palestine, a most interesting record of the first pure food laws in history. He has also found ancient writings dealing with the first instance on record of the keeping of wines in a government warehouse under bond.

Dating back to the period of King Ahab, 850 B. C., these inscriptions are considered to be one of the greatest finds of the Harvard Palestinian expedition which delved into the city of Ahab and Amri for three years. They found labels on wine and oil jars. These mention the year in which the wine was laid down in the cellars of the palace storehouse, and they state the vineyard from which the wine came. Important facts that are recognized equally well by viticulturists today.

On the oil jars the label reads: "A jar of pure oil" with the mention of the district from which the oil came. The bits of pottery on which the descriptions were written were not parts of the jars but were evidently intended to be attached to the necks of the receptacles just as are labels on wine at the present time.

NO GROUND LEFT

EXEMPTION of American coastwise traffic from the payment of Panama canal tolls constitutes, in effect, a subsidy of such shipping. Opinions may differ as to the wisdom of adopting such a subsidy. But, as to the right of the United States to adopt such a policy, it is difficult to see how there can be any difference of opinion whatever. It would be denying to the United States a right possessed by every other nation on earth.

Lord Grey, in his protest against the coastwise exemption plan, seems to recognize to some extent at least the impudence of the British position. England, he says, does not question America's right to subsidize her shipping, but, he continues, "it does not follow therefore that the United States may not be debarré by the Hay-Pauncefote treaty from granting a subsidy to certain shipping in a certain way, if the effect of the method chosen for granting such subsidy would be to impose upon British or other foreign shipping an unfair share of the burden of the upkeep of the canal, or to create a discrimination in respect of the condition or charges of traffic, or otherwise to prejudice rights secured to British shipping by this treaty."

By conceding America's right to grant a subsidy, subject to the conditions noted by him, Lord Grey gives away the British case; he leaves it with not a leg. For examine closely those conditions in their relation to the coastwise exemption provision.

The provision does not impose upon British or other foreign shipping an unfair share of the upkeep of the canal, since the United States expects for many years to pay for the upkeep of the canal, and has fixed tolls, to begin with, as low as they are now on the Suez canal after 40 years of operation. Surely neither England nor any other nation can complain as long as the tolls are no higher than they are at Suez.

Nor does the coastwise exemption provision create a discrimination against English or any other shipping, since coastwise shipping is a monopoly, confined exclusively to American ships.

Nor, finally, does Lord Grey cite any particular whatsoever in which English rights are jeopardized by this American coastwise exemption.

If America has the right to grant subsidies to her own ships, a right jealously maintained by every other nation, then England has no ground upon which to stand in attacking the coastwise exemption provision. There is no more reason why England should call into question America's exemption of coastwise traffic from Panama tolls than there is why America should question England's right to subsidize, in any manner she might see fit, her own ships that will use the Panama canal.

And for England to demand that America submit to arbitration the right to subsidize her ships is an arrogant assumption that will never for one moment be listened to by the people of this country. Opinion here may differ as to the wisdom of a ship subsidy, but the right to grant such a subsidy will no more be surrendered by the United States, or even submitted to arbitration, than it would by Great Britain itself.

GAMBLING, NOT BUSINESS

JUST how little use, comparatively, made of the New York stock exchange as a place for the actual buying and selling of stocks is shown by testimony elicited during the hearings of the money trust investigation.

During the six years from 1906 to 1912 the entire salable stock of the Reading was transferred 216 times, though the transfer books showed only 18 times. In other words, only 8.6 per cent of the sales were even ostensibly for investment.

In 1906, of 23,478,339 steel shares sold on exchange, only 6,316,747 were transferred on the company's books. In 1910 the capital of the company was traded in 73.4 times. Only one-fourth of the stock exchange "sales" were actual transfers of stock.

The stock of Amalgamated Copper has changed hands 8.05 times per year from 1906 to 1912 on average, not on the company's books. And so it goes with other stocks.

The New York stock exchange, it would seem, from such facts, exists primarily for purposes of stock gambling. Only to a very limited extent is it used as a center for the legitimate purchase and sale of stocks.

Does the United States need to perpetuate a stock exchange Monte Carlo for the building up of our industries?

THEY HAVE ALWAYS EXISTED

SENATOR LUKE LEA differs somewhat from his colleague and fellow-Democrat, Senator Bailey. The latter believes that a custom that has always been should always be; the former most emphatically does not.

Senator Lea is one of the leaders among the progressive Democrats who are endeavoring to break the rule of seniority in the United States senate. "Do you," asked a reporter, "consider that the system, entrenched as it is by precedent, can be successfully broken?"

"Well," replied the young Tennesseean, "the law of primogeniture has been abandoned very generally in the civilized world. I don't think it has any more claim to survival in the senate than elsewhere. That's the very point. Every advance civilization has known has been gained by throwing off old ideas and adopting new ones. And always there have been failures to protest against laying desecrating hands upon the 'constitution of the fathers,' whether the evil attacked were primogeniture, slavery, hanging as a punishment for thievery, or the abolition of the rule of seniority in the senate."

THE ONLY CURE

THE Industrial Workers of the World grows apace. It is fed and nurtured, its very existence is made possible, by selfish American employers. For the I. W. W. takes root only where there is flagrant industrial injustice. It grows rankly in such soil as it found at Lawrence, Mass. And now it is springing up over night at Little Falls, New York, where foreign labor has been ground underfoot, and where the employers, to end a strike, have used the most oppressive measures.

The I. W. W. is a most ominous sign of the times. Its extension to all industry would mean revolution, anarchy. It can no more be stopped by repressive measures than can an epidemic of typhoid by drugs alone. In both cases the disease is a symptom of unhealthful conditions. In both cases the spread of the disease can be stopped when the cause is removed. The cause of the I. W. W. is social injustice. The cure is just wages and just social conditions.

BEYOND ITS CONCEPTION

WOODROW WILSON'S Staunton speech did not exactly please the somewhat captious New York Sun. Perhaps it would be nearer the truth to say that, as the president elect did not use the Wall Street idiom, the Sun simply could not understand him. It's pretty hard for anything idealistic to penetrate the Wall Street intellect.

Hence we find the Sun advising Wilson, before he assumes his office, to deliver his mind of its entire contents of sublimated ethical philosophy, of excited if nebulous sociologic thought, of poetic aspirations for the betterment of the human race, of vague but earnest yearning for the codification of a higher moral law to supersede the system of law which he will probably be called upon later to administer.

Vastly humorous, you see, and vastly pathetic, too, when you consider that one of the oldest and formerly most influential of American newspapers has reached such a state that it can find cause only for ridicule in a public man who, for only a moment, leaves materialism and appeals to the ideal.

WHICH IS BETTER?

ALTHOUGH the Oregon legislature, which convenes two weeks from today, will be overwhelmingly Republican, it will be compelled, owing to the peculiar way of doing things in that state, to elect Harry Lane, a Democrat, to the United States senate as the colleague of another Democrat, Clifford Wicks, who is already in office.

MIGHT BE BETTER

COLORADO produces 25.7 bushels of wheat to the acre, as against an average of 14.2 for the entire United States. And yet the general application of scientific principle by Colorado farmers would greatly increase the present production in this state.

THE PARCEL POST.

Two of the most practicable progressive reforms advocated in this country for a score of years at the postal savings bank system and the parcel post, both of which were recommended by President Taft and put into effect under his administration. These two innovations will be of real and substantial benefit to the people. They were accomplished without flourish or the blare of trumpets. Although the credit for their adoption is due to the Taft administration, the president in his characteristic modesty has not loudly advertised the fact. The postal savings banks are now established in almost every state. They are serving a very useful purpose, and contrary to the fear expressed in some quarters they do not appear to be making serious inroads upon the business of savings banks. This is because they were wisely and carefully installed.

Within a few weeks the United States will try even a bolder experiment in maintaining a parcel post system. On January 1 this system will be opened for the public's use. Just how smoothly it will work is as yet problematical, but from past experience with Mr. Taft's reforms it is safe to predict that the parcel post system will prove immensely popular with the people. The chief objection to it, next to that of the express companies, was found among the smaller country merchants who feared that their business would suffer serious loss because of the increased facilities offered their customers for doing business direct with the great city mail order houses and department stores. And this objection was to be lightly dismissed. Any injury inflicted on country merchants would be deplorable. But upon the theory of the greatest good to the greatest number, the government probably is acting wisely.

Some of those most energetic in advocating the parcel post believed that it would be the means of reducing the cost of living by reducing the cost and complication of marketing. It is hoped that the parcel post can accomplish something tangible in this direction and that the new facilities for doing business direct with the city consumer will materially benefit both. In England where the system has been in operation for many years it is customary for every city family to receive part of its produce direct from the farms. This cuts out the middlemen and not only gives the farmers a direct and reliable market but insures the consumer against cold storage products and eliminates the cost of handling.

Here is now the great opportunity for the farmer to begin to market direct to the consumer. Every farmer within reasonable distance of a city should install a telephone and make arrangements to send a daily supply of produce to the city. The best way to do this would be for the farmer to advertise in the city papers just what he has to sell and the probable daily supply. In this way he can form reliable urban connections and enjoy a steady and profitable business. His customers can order daily by telephone and prices, supplies and quantities can be discussed with satisfaction to all concerned. The wise farmer who has eggs, poultry, butter, etc., to sell will establish his trade early by adopting business methods just as any other merchant or manufacturer does. Thousands of city families are eager to get into touch with the farmer producers, but do not know how. The newspaper is the proper place for the exchange of intelligence. It will be the handmaid of the parcel post.

Different Ways of Helping Folks

By RUTH CAMERON.

"There are different modes of obligation and different degrees to our gratitude and favor. A man may lend his countenance who will not part with his money and open his mind to us who will not draw out his purse. How many ways are there in which our peace may be assailed besides actual want? How many comforts do we stand in need of besides meat and drink and clothing?"—Hazlitt.

All the help and service that is given to others in this world is not given wittingly and deliberately. Many a people confer benefits on those about them in ways they know not of. Whoever creates a beautiful thing of any sort, even though he creates it primarily for his own satisfaction, gives pleasure to others, and since pleasure is what we all seek so deeply, is not that after all as valuable a gift as money or food or drink?

Some years ago I was sent to interview a woman who was running for the school board. I was ushered into her living room to wait for her. The room made an impression upon me that I shall never forget. It was a room in the turn of the century, but it was a room in which the spirit of the age had evidently gone into care and thought and taste. There was an all-pervasive sense of harmony and beauty about it which not even the most casual visitor could miss. It seems to me that the woman who created that room, by so doing, conferred as real a benefit upon all who enter it as if she gave them money.

It is sometimes considered frivolous for women to cultivate their natural beauty and enhance it by becoming clothes. To my mind the woman who does this is doing a good work, if she does not concentrate on it to the exclusion of higher duties, because she is conferring a benefit on mankind. And mind you, I mean mankind to include womanhood. I know that I have often wished to tell a pretty woman in a pretty gown how much I enjoyed looking at her, and I have heard other women express the same uncanny appreciation of superficial beauty.

Not the creation or cultivation of beauty, the only way in which we unconsciously benefit our neighbors. A strong, serene personality is a continual gift of strength and peace to all who come into contact with it. A well ordered home where peace and serenity reign is a blessing to all who come into it. In a thousand such ways we may unconsciously bless and benefit others.

TOPEKA

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Givnah"

Topeka is situated in the heart of Kansas, 1,500 miles from Broadway, but well within the country club and ornamental light belt. It is the capital of Kansas, which is enough of a job to keep any two cities busy.

Topeka has only 43,000 people, if you are from the east or almost over 43,000 if you are from Kansas. It is a gigantic town for its size and has several mammoth attractions, including the beefy creamery, the world's largest railroad shops in the world, the biggest blue organ between Chicago and Salt Lake City and a magazine with nearly a million circulation.

Topeka is 70 years old and was founded by free solers who have continued to be almost phenomenally free. It is situated on the banks of the Kaw.

"Topeka's capital building has garbage cans for the disposal of grafters."

which shines out the lower wards each spring and is a large rectangular town with square blocks and a main business thoroughfare so wide that two windstorms can do business independently on it, side by side, on a March day.

Topeka is like most Kansas towns. It is twice as big as its population shows, because its citizens move faster as fast as ordinary citizens. Topeka is ahead of date waiting for the world to catch up. Topeka's newspapers occupy marble palaces. Topeka's churches hold overflow class meetings in the farmstead room. Topeka's capital building has garbage cans for the disposal of grafters. Topeka has the best one-armed golf player in the United States.

Topeka was made famous by the Adelson, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, which, however, lost the city in a suit for nervous prostration for years, but threatening to move away its shops. They are now solidly anchored and the railroad has increased given the city a metropolitan skyline by building a 10-story office building next to the capital building, where Governor Stubbs has acted for several years as a non-conductor between the two.

Topeka's people are prosperous, happy, entertaining, literary and thrifty, eating on ginger ale and milder drinks. Its two greatest citizens are T. F. Sheldon, who has written a five-foot library and Arthur Capper, who edits newspapers and magazines for 1,000,000 readers and would have been elected if 27 more Kansans had spread their moose horns before November 3.

The state capital building at Topeka is much finer than the ordinary state house and can be looked at even by an architect without pain.

WHY THUNDER SOURS MILK

From Harper's Weekly.
It is universally known that milk turns sour after a thunder storm. This has been attributed to the large quantity of ozone which is liberated by the electricity in the air. The experiments of Professor Trillat in Paris do not confirm that theory. He has established that atmospheric depressions cause purifying gases—normally quiescent—to rise to the surface of certain substances, and in support of his theory points out that odors of all sorts are more permeating after storms. These atmospheric depressions accelerate the decomposition of gases and tend to liberate them. Hence lactic ferment is produced. Professor Trillat has made many experiments with diverse substances under varying pressures and has observed that when the barometer is lowest (during storms, etc.) the decomposition of gases is most rapid.

TURKISH SOLDIERS WITHOUT FEZES

From the London Chronicle.
For the first time, we read, the Turkish soldier is going to war without the fez. Mahmud II, when he changed the uniform of his army, tried to introduce the shako, but the opposition of the soldiers was too strong for him. The fez is certainly a poor covering for men on active service; for even the change of its color to shako did not get over its feelings as a protection against sun or bad weather.

Hence the headshawl devised some time ago to be worn twisted around the fez. The Turk's devotion to the fez is clearly explained by Buckle Fortman: "The prejudice against the hat rests on a religious basis. If the ramaz (form of prayer) is rightly performed the forehead must touch the ground. The sign of a hat or the peak of a hat would prevent this."

THE HASKIN LETTER

IMMIGRATION XXVIII—EMIGRATION TO CANADA

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

For many years Canada has made systematic efforts to promote immigration from the United States to its dominions. The propaganda has resulted so successfully that nearly one-third of its immigration comes from our country. We are sending Canada more people than it is receiving from England and Wales together. Our immigrants are exactly the kind of people Canada is looking for, since they are the best fitted in the world for pioneering in the development of agricultural and other resources in a new territory. In less than eight years the United States has sent nearly 400,000 people across the line.

The media will consult Canada's immigration authorities to see how much they want Uncle Sam's citizens to come into the Dominion. W. J. White, the press agent of the propaganda, says there is not a state in the Union in which Canada is not advertised, the offices of the government being located in the best agricultural sections, where easy communication with the surrounding country may be established. He tells how agents go out and meet the prospective settlers; carry information to them and their friends as to the soil, crops, and the like; how they make the annual rounds of the fair agricultural fairs with exhibits; and how the general work is done.

Both Countries Losing. While the United States is losing its farmers folk to Canada in such large numbers, Canada is losing its share of people to the United States. At approximately one-fifth of all the people born in the Dominion reside in the United States today. And where we are giving Canada some 60,000 immigrants a year, it is responding with a counter current of some 50,000 immigrants to the United States. Of these, approximately one-half are native born Canadians, while the others are naturalized Canadians. However, it is a relatively small proportion of this immigration is of the same kind we are sending to Canada. It takes our farmers and in return gives us skilled and unskilled laborers.

The assertion is made in some quarters that this exodus of labor from Canada is largely due to the incoming tide of immigration, the native workmen being replaced by the immigrant and forced to seek employment elsewhere. An example of how this has happened in the United States is cited in the case of many American factories in which native labor has been replaced almost entirely by immigrant labor. In this connection it is pointed out, however, that in nearly every instance the effect of the coming of immigrant labor has been to force the native workman up and not out. The big supply of immigrant labor has so expanded the industries of the country that the native workman has found a full supply of picked jobs instead of being forced to accept "the run of the mill."

A large proportion of the immigrants coming from Canada to the United States are French Canadians who come to work in the mills of New England. It thus happens that the tide out of the United States goes largely from the middle west while the tide into the United States comes into the north-east. While the Canadians who come to the United States are in the main a desirable immigration, it is generally realized that the best immigrant from an economic standpoint is the one who goes upon the land, and therefore that Canada gets the better of us in the annual immigration exchange between Uncle Sam and John Canuck.

It is probable that powers else in the world are any considerable extent made up so largely of agricultural people as the trek of Americans to Canada. More than three-fourths of the Americans going have been engaged in agriculture or its allied industries in the United States. During a period of eight years they took up 70,000 homesteads in the western provinces. They now constitute nearly one-third of the population of those provinces. It is a fact that Canada, by the way, has a very kind of people who transformed our middle western states from boundless prairies into communities which are the backbone of the nation.

Kind of people it would be most worth while for the United States to keep. The Canadian immigration authorities admit that they have had a right heavy competition along this line from immigration agents in Texas and other western and southwestern states; and that the strongest consideration they have to overcome in inducing immigration is the reluctance of the people to settle outside the United States.

Railroads Make Special Rates. For a long while the railroads to Texas and other places in the United States where settlers are wanted gave better rates for excursions of settlers than those leading to Canada, but the Canadian government now has secured rates that enable it to compete with the roads to the southwest. In 19 years Canada spent approximately $2,000,000 in encouraging immigration from the United States, this being almost half of the total expenditures for the entire immigration propaganda in all parts of the world.

It is certain that no other country labors so persistently to attract the kind of people as Canada, and it is likewise certain that one of the reasons our immigration from the countries of northern Europe has fallen off is the success of the Canadian immigration propaganda in those fields. Thus Canada's only is receiving half of its new farming population from the United States itself, but it is drawing the major portion of the other half from territory which used to be the special immigrant-turkling preserves of the United States. It is hoped that the movement of some of the states of sending representatives abroad for the purpose of building up our waning immigrant tide from northwestern Europe may be fruitful. It is realized, however, that these states will have a keen and successful competitor in Canada, and that our success in developing the prairie region of the Mississippi valley is Canada's greatest argument for the future of its great grain-producing region. Its slogan of "The last best west" has proved a most effective one, calling forth in the human mind a twentieth century repetition of the history of Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Robinson Drafting New Divorce Bill

A new divorce bill, placing a ban on the marriage in Colorado of persons who have been divorced less than a year in other states, has been drafted by Senator W. C. Robinson of Colorado Springs. The present law prohibits the marriage of persons divorced in Colorado within a year, but does not affect persons from other states, who may come here immediately following the granting of a divorce and secure licenses without any difficulty. Nevada is the only state in the union, apart from Colorado, where the proposed law does not hold good. Divorces there are granted and licenses to marry issued simultaneously. It is contended by Robinson that Colorado should put an end to the practice of divorced persons. In other states coming here as they do to Nevada for the sole purpose of remarrying. A clause prohibiting the granting of a divorce in court less than 30 days after it is filed is included in Senator Robinson's measure, and another marks illegal the marriage of persons who are divorced in Colorado go to another state and remarry within a year, and then return to Colorado.

Wants State to Assert Title to Stratton Estate

A number of Colorado Springs and Denver firms are expected to submit bids for the erection of the first 13 buildings of the Alvon Stratton Home at Broadmoor. The price is expected to be in the neighborhood of $210,000. The plans may be inspected at room 2nd Mining Exchange building, beginning today, and bids, each of which must be accompanied by a certified check of $500, will be accepted until Tuesday morning, January 21. A report from Denver states that a joint resolution, directing the attorney general to institute legal proceedings against the executor and trustees of the Stratton estate, to the end that the state of Colorado assert title thereto, will be introduced in the house early this week by Representative Alphonse P. Ardoncel of Boulder. Concurrently with the presentation of this resolution, it is said, Ardoncel will introduce a bill prescribing the manner in which all charitable trusts, specified in wills, shall hereafter be executed in this state and invalidating charitable bequests of a public nature unless the will directs the administration of these bequests to be made under the authority of the state by a commission to be composed of the attorney general, superintendent of public instruction, an associate justice of the supreme court and the county judge of the county in which the property bequeathed, or the greater portion thereof, is situated. It is not generally believed, in view of the recent action by Attorney General Griffith, that the state can take over the Stratton estate absolutely, but Griffith recommended that the state be represented at the hearing of all reports, and that the Stratton trustees report to the district court instead of to themselves. In other words, the attorney general suggested that the state have general supervision, with the trustees still in direct charge of the estate.

MAY START COLLEGE GYM IN TWO WEEKS

The Christmas holidays will end at Colorado college tomorrow morning, when the regular work will be resumed. Most of the students who have been at their homes will return today. There is still about three weeks left of this semester, and the students will be busy preparing for final examinations. A large number have been canvassing for the college endowment fund during this vacation, and it is expected that a considerable sum will be realized from the various towns in Colorado. Dr. Stocum declared last night that he has every reason to believe that the year 1913 will be the most successful in the history of the college. The new gymnasium will be started within the next two weeks, or as soon as the plans can be worked out in detail. Dr. Stocum also expressed appreciation of the fact that the college has been granted a charter of 1914.

It is a recognition that pleases me greatly," he said. The Rev. Robert P. Carson of Manitou addressed the men's meeting, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., at the Crystal theater yesterday afternoon. He spoke on "The Abiding Companionship," emphasizing the power of Christian belief as an aid in conquering the battles of life. He said that the man who has no one to whom he may tell his troubles or confide his joys is a very lonely person. "Half of the joy of accomplishment," said Mr. Carson, "lies in the ability to share that joy with others. There is an abiding companionship in the love of God and a realization of the power of the holy spirit. No man need be lonely who has the love of God in his heart."

WORK IS OUTLINED BY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE FEDERATED BROTHERHOOD

The executive committee of the Colorado Springs Federation of Brotherhoods met yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A., to outline a campaign of work. A committee on the preparation of a constitution was elected, as follows: G. M. Howe, chairman; M. P. Yates and Atherton Noyes. The following resolution was passed: Resolved, That a committee of three, consisting of G. M. Howe, the Rev. John S. Ewart and E. B. Simpson, be appointed to develop a plan of Bible study of the social teachings of the Bible for use in the men's classes of the church brotherhoods, and that this outline of study be offered to the brotherhoods for their use during the next six months. It also was decided that the same committee develop a plan of Bible study suitable for the men of the shops of Colorado Springs and Colorado City, to be used at the noon-hour meetings. These meetings have been carried on under the direction of the Y. M. C. A., and thereby much good has been accomplished, but it is felt that some outlined system of work will make more effective results possible. The executive committee plans to discuss the question of enlarging the social work of the brotherhoods, at a meeting to be held Sunday, January 13.

"JOY RIDE" COST $785

His recent holiday "joyride" in Denver cost Edward Eager's student at Colorado college just $785 in making repairs to his car, settling damages and arranging for bondsmen acceptable to the court. Besides, he had his allowance cut in two by an angry father as a punishment for reckless driving.

About a week ago Eager's automobile collided with a wagon on the Denver streets, while he was riding with a party of college students. Two men were bruised, a horse was killed and a huckster's cart "spilled" over the street.

Eager is now in Colorado Springs, but will have to go to Denver some time this week to answer to a charge of reckless driving.

IMMIGRATION XXVI—EMIGRATION TO CANADA

By Frederic J. Haskin.

And the Canadian authorities promulgated an order that no Asiatic would be admitted who did not come by a continuous journey. British prestige was protected but the Hindus were completely shut out.

Government Receives Cooperation.

On the whole, Canada has an immigration service that is the admiration and despair of many countries. With so much power vested in the executive branch of the government, the steamship lines are simply told that they must do this thing or that, else their steering passengers will be denied admission to Canada. Hence the government gets a cooperation from the steamship companies in filtering the immigrant stream before it starts across the sea, such as the United States authorities never have been able to secure. And the particular phase of the service which affects the United States to such a large degree, is so efficient as to be dangerous to the attraction of so many of our best citizens—unless we can believe that American settlers on the other side will make for more complete commercial intercourse and that a similar

The Expressmen have many various customs in connection with the burial of their dead and the Raining of the sick. At every Muslim funeral, for instance, there are many mourners, varying in number according to the wealth of the deceased.

These funeral prayers always last 11 hours and are performed by the relatives of the dead, who kneel on their hands and wailing loudly. The women perform the relative and friends of the deceased, and then around the coffin.

This is the custom of the Muslims.

The Men's Brotherhood of the First Congregational church met yesterday morning to take up the discussion of the "Social Creed of the Church." The plans formulated at the recent council at Chicago were explained and opportunity was given for the expression of opinion in regard to them. This brotherhood is taking up the question of whether or not progress can be best attained along lines of church orthodoxy. All men are welcome to attend the meetings, which are held every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, and last for one hour. Next Sunday an address on "Vocational Education" will be given by Carlos M. Cole, city superintendent of the public schools.

LOST IN THE SKY!

Harriet Quimby, the Aviator, in Lee's. A manuscript found after her tragic death.

Nobody likes to be lost. There is a veritable epidemic about it. Our hearts go out to the lost child, we join in the search for the missing. Whether we be strangers or neighbors. The incentive to go to the rescue is always the same.

It is a new experience to be lost in the sky, but it is as real and trying as to be lost in the midst of earth's wilderness or on the infinite expanse of the waters of the sea. I speak with knowledge. Twice I have been lost in the sky while driving a monoplane.

The sense of loneliness and helplessness one feels while driving a thousand feet above the earth in a swiftly moving monoplane, with nothing but the expanse of sky above and the horizon around and with no sign of recognition from the distant earth below is overwhelming and indescribable. One can do nothing but look and hope. One must drive on, amid the roar of the motor blade making its thousand revolutions a minute.

The aviator who is lost feels no helping hand reached out to him. He looks for none. There is nothing to do except to keep an eye keenly on the watch for some friendly spire, some sign of a well remembered meadow or

Deaths and Funerals

The funeral of John Wilson will be held from the undertaking rooms of Fairleys & Law at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The Rev. Bernard A. Ruggles, pastor of the First Universalist church of Denver, will conduct the services.

The funeral of Jacob Ogan, aged 72 years, of 224 East Mill street, will be held from the undertaking rooms of Fairleys & Law at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Ogan was a veteran of the Civil war and had been a resident of this city for the last 25 years.

The funeral of Harold R. Wilson, who died Saturday, will be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning from the undertaking rooms of Fairleys & Law, the Rev. Frank Haly Tourist officiating. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery.

The funeral of the infant son of Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Magruder will be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning from the residence, 1831 North Nevada avenue. Interment in Evergreen cemetery, will be private.

Mrs. L. C. Russell, aged 60, and for many years a nurse in Colorado Springs, prior to her departure, about six years ago, died in Pueblo last Saturday, after a long illness. The body will be brought here this morning, and will be buried in Evergreen cemetery.

Randolph H. McAnastah of Jersey City, N. J., died at a local hospital yesterday afternoon. The body was taken last night to Jersey City for interment.

Ahead of water, indicating the location of the aviation field to which a safe descent can be made. But it is never hopeless, for the aviator knows that if darkness supervenes, it will, in all probability, disclose the beacon fires of watchers on the field. If one has not flown too far away, he can easily recognize, from his commanding place of vantage, the blazing pile where the watchers wait.

Why should anyone be lost in the air? It is the easiest thing in the world. The landmarks you see, as you walk or ride on the surface of the earth, are not recognized as such by the flyer. On the earth you see these things straight ahead, or at the side, within the horizontal range of the eye. From a balloon or an aeroplane you see them from the standpoint of the perpendicular. You see the roof, not the sides of a house; the pinnacles that pierce the sky; not the majestic towers

PASSING OF SUNDAY SUPPER

Edith Townsend Kaufmann in Lees

Time was when the Sunday night supper was of even more vital importance than the midday dinner, especially in those towns and villages where strict religious principles prohibited cooking on the Sabbath.

It was not considered wrong to mix a pan of biscuits the night before and bake them for supper, so that these hot, puffy features of the meal, with honey or some of mother's quince preserves or canned cherries, were looked forward to with joyous anticipation.

As time passed, the stringent line relaxed as far as cooking for supper was concerned, and, in addition to cold meats, there would always be some hot dish, such as the real old-fashioned hush or scrambled eggs, with creamed potatoes.

City life has changed all this. Even the suburbanite who apes city ways has the mahogany table cleared, the doilies used in place of the regulation dinner cloth, and the chafing dish placed in front of the hostess, the ingredients at hand, and the lamp trimmed and burning. From this she turns out creamed chicken and ham, deviled sardines, mutton ragout and other "meeses." her grandmother would call them, as she waxes reminiscent on the honey and hot biscuit era.

THE WORLD-WIDE BOY SCOUTS

From the Providence Journal: One memorable day a Dutch farmer-warrior crossed over into the neighboring country where floated the British flag, and bottled up a place called Mafeking. In Mafeking was Colonel Baden-Powell. Of the white persons there, only about 1,200 were available for the defense against General Cronje's eager army. The investment proved to be poor strategy for the Boers. Colonel Baden-Powell refused to let them into the town, and, as they
